Taking risks!

- Do you like adventures?
- Are you a risk-taker?
- Do you feel comfortable in trying something new?

This slide features a dark blue background with a subtle pattern of overlapping circles and a grid. A large, faint, light blue circle is centered behind the text. On the left side, there is a vertical toolbar with icons for navigation and a small status box showing '3/29'. A blue bookmark icon is visible in the top right corner.

Reading: Taking risks

This slide has the same dark blue background and pattern as the previous one. A large, vibrant purple rectangular banner is positioned across the middle of the slide, containing the title 'Reading: Taking risks' in white text. The left side of the slide features the same navigation toolbar and status box as the previous slide.

Reading: Taking risks

Many of life's greatest achievements require going outside of your comfort zone. Whether it means overcoming shyness to perform onstage, investing money to help your business grow, or putting yourself out there for the chance to find love, some of life's most rewarding experiences come as a result of taking risks.

5

Reading: Taking risks

However, many of us have a difficult time dealing with the uncertainty that goes along with taking risks. A feeling of unease grows out of not knowing the outcome and the fear of potential failure. What if I embarrass myself in front of everyone? What if I lose all the money that I invested? What if I open my heart and get rejected? What if I'm not good enough?

6

Reading: Taking risks

Answer that with another “what if”: what if the point of taking risks isn’t the outcome, but the process in and of itself. Through taking risks, we must confront our own fears, and sometimes that leads to failure... But what if that wasn’t such a bad thing after all?

7

Zero Conditional

8

Zero Conditional

- This conditional is used when the result will always happen:
 - ✓ Universal truths
 - ✓ Scientific facts
 - ✓ General ideas

9

Zero Conditional

- We can make a zero conditional sentence with two present simple verbs: one in the 'if clause' and one in the 'main clause':
 - ✓ Snakes bite if they are scared
 - ✓ If babies are hungry, they cry

10

Zero Conditional

- If you heat the water at 100°C, it boils.
- The water boils if you heat it at 100°C.
- If you touch the fire, you get burned.
- You get burned if you touch the fire.

11

First conditional

12

First conditional

- Used to talk about things that might happen in the future;
- This describes possible things, which could easily come true.

13

First conditional

- The first conditional has the present simple after 'if', then the future simple in the main clause:
 - ✓ If it rains, I won't go to the park.
 - ✓ If I study today, I'll go to the party tonight.

14

First conditional

- If I have enough money, I'll buy some new shoes.
- I'll buy some new shoes if I have enough money.
- If I see her, I'll tell her.
- I'll tell her if I see her.

15

First conditional

- The first conditional describes a particular situation, whereas the zero conditional describes what happens in general:
 - ✓ If you sit in the sun, you get burned.
 - ✓ If you sit in the sun, you'll get burned

A presentation slide with a dark blue background and a subtle pattern of overlapping circles. The title "Conditionals" is centered at the top in a bold, yellow font. Below the title, there is a bulleted list with two items: "Zero Conditional" and "First Conditional", each preceded by a small yellow square. On the left side of the slide, there is a vertical toolbar with several icons: a square, a left arrow, a right arrow, a magnifying glass, and a close button (an 'X' in a circle). A small blue bookmark icon is visible in the top right corner.
